Loyola Law School is a member of the National Association for Law Placement (NALP) and strongly opposes discrimination based upon sex, age, race, color, religious creed, national origin, sexual orientation, physical disability, marital, parental or veteran status, or the prejudice of clients.

NOTE: An exception to the Loyola Law School Office of Career Services non-discrimination policy and AALS bylaws is granted to representatives of the U.S. Department of Defense who discriminate on a basis not permitted by Loyola's non-discrimination policy or AALS bylaws. The exception is currently made in order to avoid the loss of funds that would otherwise have been imposed under the Solomon Amendment (enacted by Congress in 1996). Congress adopted changes to the Solomon Amendment in 1999. It is currently under review by the AALS. For additional information, see the Military Information file at the front desk in Career Services.
